Most Severe Storm That Ever Visited This Section

Doctor Beck's calendar, under date of Thursday, January 27, displays a black-bordered white flag, which indicates a cold wave.

True to schedule, the cold wave arrived, and with it came the most severe wind, rain and hail storm that Carmel has ever experienced.

Added to the severity of the storm was the danger of falling trees and unroofed dwellings. No section of the town escaped the wind's fury and everywhere lie prone large and small pine trees, uprooted and snapped off.

The storm did not abate until about ten o'clock Friday morning. On Thursday and Friday nights lamps and candles took the place of electric lights, and the telephone wires also were down.

As far as known no serious damage to houses in Carmel occured. Windows of several residences along the ocean front were blown in; there was a shingle shower from the roof of La Playa; a section of roof of a small lean-to at the Mission was carried away; a corner of Walter Basham's cottage was struck by a large pine tree, and across several streets and roads fallen trees impede travel.

Good News

It is with pleasure that we announce the addition of Mr. K. Uchimoto to the staff of the Pine Cone. He is a keen observer of local events, and will contribute weekly a news item or appropos remarks.

Read this week's, and watch for those following.

Gadzooks! Now It's Asilomar Junction at P. G.

From the Cypress

With various people on the peninsula making light veined suggestions regarding a change in names of certain localities here in a vain effort to forget that it has been raining blue mud and purple shovels, comes now Dan Freeman of Pacific Grove with the very latest teaser.

Freeman suggests that Pacific Grove's name be changed to Asilomar Junction. It is possible that this suggestion is made because he owns a villa site out there.

"Asilomar is really the terminal," said Freeman yesterday. "It has a fine depot and I'm going to take the matter up with the railroad officials. If we can place Asilomar on the map by changing the name of Pacific Grove I am confident it will build up the section rapidly."

What next?

Quite Natural

MR. W. L OVERSTREET,
Edisor Carmel Pine Cone,

Dear Bill: I take my pen in hand to say that since moving to San Diego with the family, three weeks ago, I have noticed about myself a certain lack of "pep," an absence of sparkle and general interest in life. This worried me considerably until, seeking about for an explanation, I discovered that I had for that exact length of time missed the Pine Cone, having neglected to advise you of my change of address.

Will you please advertise in your valued columns for those back numbers, which I wish forwarded, and damn the expense!

It occurs to me that by this time I may owe you another dollar's subscription. If this be so, notify me, and I'll raise the amount, even if I have to sell the family dog.

Very truly yours

LOWELL HARDY

Director of Publicity and Special Events Panama California International Exposition, San Diego.

Will Go To Front as Chaplain in the British Navy

According to the Stanford-Palo Alto News, Rev. M. Mullineux, well known in Carmel, where he has preached at All Saints on several occasions, is to join the British navy. The above-named journal says:

"The reported decision of the Rev. M. Mullineux, rector of the Episcopal church at Los Gatos and chaplain of the Seamen's institute in San Francisco, to leave this country for England, where he expects to enter active service as chaplain in the king's navy, is causing much regret among his parishioners, who hold him in high esteem and do not wish to lose his valued guidance.

"The vocation of navy chaplain was followed for many years by Doctor Mullineux befor his coming to America, and his experience in the Boer war familiarized him with some of the conditions which are being faced at present by the British forces at the front. It is not expected that he will take his departure before the first week of March."

Mail Transportation

A number of our citizens have recently expressed their satisfaction with the method of transporting the mails to and from the local postoffice.

Mail which heretofore was seldom distributed before 2 o'clock, is now in the hands of the public about 12:45. The night mail, except when the train is late at Monterey, is in the boxes at 7:15.

Dad Hamilton's contract calls for thirteen round trips a week and allows one hour each way. With the automobile service, twenty round trips per week are now provided, and the runs to and from Monterey are made in about twenty minutes.

On February 10 more than 90,000 acres of vacant non-timbered land in various counties in California, some in Monterey, will be opened for entry.

Two Carmel Artists Exhibit Their Work at Watsonville

The following is from the Watsonville Register:

Members of the art section of the Watsonville Woman's Club were busy again last evening opening more boxes sent in by artists contributing to the coming loan exhibition to be held Saturday in the Hotel Appleton under the auspices of the section.

Among those whose paintings arrived yesterday are Miss M. deNeale Morgan and Arthur Vachell, both of Carmel.

Miss M. deNeale Morgan is well known here, being the niece of Mrs. W. Sanborn of this city. She studied at the San Francisco Institute of Art in the early nineties, but since then has developed her own method of landscape painting in opaque water colors.

Two examples of such water colors received from her are wonderfully beautiful. They are priced at $150 and $125.

For the past seven years Miss Morgan has had her studio at Carmel and has made many pictures of the beautiful country in the vicinity of Point Lobos. When Mr. Chase had classes in Carmel two years ago, Miss Morgan did some figure work with him, but the landscape method which she uses is peculiarly her own.

Two canvases at $40 and $50 have come from Arthur H. Vachell of Carmel. Vachell is an Englishman and brother of the novelist, Horace Vachell. He has lived in California for many years, and has maintained his studio at Carmel for about eight years.

An experienced teacher would like preparatory and first-year high school coaching. Work in English grammar a specialty.

Trip That Tried Men's Souls

Colton, in his diary, writes writes of the difficulties of traveling over the San Juan hill in 1847, which until the the first of this year had been a trip to be dreaded. He says:

"San Juan is thirty-four miles from Monterey, the only building are a gigantic church and the contiguous dwellings—once occupied by the priests and their Indian neophytes. The sanctuary remains, but the priests and the Indians are on the four winds, save over those whom the pine sighs its requiem.

"We broke our long fast on hard bread, broiled pork and coffee without milk. The sun was high when our mules were harnessed and the crack of the driver's whip told that we were on the way. A few miles brought us to the foot of the hill. When half way up our mules balked and the wagon began to travel backward. We blocked the wheels and tried to cheer and force them on, but a mule has that peculiar virtue which is insensible alike to flatteries and frowns. Still we coaxed and whipped and cheered in vain—there stuck our old wagon, fast as a thunder-cloud on a mountain bluff We had to turn lighters and carry the greater part of the load by hand to the top of the hill. One of the mules whistled out in seeming derision, while his fellows looked sorry, as smitten with compunction.

"This delay consumed several hours and the sun was for down his western slope when we reached a few shanties and here we camped for the night. One tethered the animals, two brought wood and water and one turned cook We made our supper by the light of our watch-fire, smoked our cigars, turned down upon the earth, with our saddles for our pillows. A blanket served to protect each from the dews and the night air. How little man wants here. His palace seems to tower in idle grandeur, between a cradle and coffin."

Fitting the Man For the Job

George Ade, recalling his reportorial days in Chicago, at a dinner in honor of Brand Whitlock, another former reporter in the windy city, told of a cub reporter on the Tribune who proved a miserable failure. He was put on a hotel run, but somehow could never find anyone worth interviewing Meantime the Herald and the Times came out every day with amazing stories of African lion-hunters, Indian snake-killers and other substitutes for Oyster Bay.

The Tribune got tired of being scooped, so the reporter was yanked and put on to the financial page. That reporter now has a job in New York. He is Frank Vanderslip, president of the National City Bank.

It developed afterward that Vanderslip's competitors had an understanding with hotel clerks, who inscribed fake names on the register, and checked them out on the day the interview appeared.

The cheerful moralist has doubtless already predicted a bad ending for these two wicked reporters. Did they go to the pen for forgery or wife-beating? Did they sink from one job to another and finally end up in the bread-line? They did not.

But isn't it a trifle characteristic that one of them should turn up as Charles B. Dillingham, manager of the New York Hippodrome, the biggest entertainment feature in the United States, and that the other should be Peter Dunne, creator of the philosophical "Mr. Dooley?"

The three men interpreted their reportorial jobs in accordance with their natures and the conservative instinct of the banker proved no match for the wits of the two fun-makers.

Decline of the Monthly—Rise of the Quarterly

The rise of the monthly magazine during the last years of the nineteenth century, and the success it achieved for a generation, led to the almost complete abandonment of the dignified quarterlies, some of which were denominational, some political, some literary.

The recent partial eclipse of the monthlies by the daily and weekly newspapers and magazines has brought about a revival of many quarterlies similar to those read by our fathers and grandfathers.

Carmel-by-the-Sea

Stands for a picture in the minds of all who live or who have lingered even for a few fleeting days within the magic of its wooing beauty—where the sea and forest meet.

It is unique among the towns of California as an ideal place of homes, as a gathering center of the world's great, and as an inspiration-giver for creative work in literature and art.

They Attract Attention

That is what makes the newspaper the most efficient advertising medium yet devised. It reaches everyone, or at least the fraction that it does not reach is so small as to be negligible. Even the few who may not read the newspaper are guided by those who do.

You get the information you desire along with news, gossip and entertainment. The paper that is so essential to you is equally necessary to your neighbor. The newspaper's influence in advertising is well-nigh universal.

Dr. Lyman Abbott Says

"I have been personally, though not intimately, acquainted with eight Presidents—Grant, the soldier; Hayes, the peacemaker; Garfield, the orator; Cleveland, the administrator; McKinley, the cautious: Roosevelt, the courageous; Taft, the lawyer; Wilson, the scholar.

"And I have known enough of other men in public life—senators, representatives, governors, mayors, and their subordinates—to know that, while some politicians are unscrupulous self-seekers in America, as in other countries, America has her share of public men as true, as pure, as self-denying, as are to be found anywhere in the world."

"Ruggles" on the Stage

Harry Leon Wilson's novel, "Ruggles of Red Gap," which has achieved a decided success since its publication about a year ago, has been dramatized. It was produced at the Fulton theatre, New York, recently, under the direction of the Shuberts, with a strong cast, including Ralph Herz and Louise Closser Hale.

The Storm in Carmel Vicinity

Hundreds of trees are down in all sections of the Pacific Improvement Company's property. Many of the fallen giants may be seen from the Carmel road on the way to Monterey.

By actual count, ninety-five trees were blown down on the beautiful Hill grounds, near Pebble Beach.

The McDonald boys report that a house belonging to L. Tarango, situated in the hills south of Carmel, was carried forty feet by the wind.

While engaged in stretching a cable across the Carmel river near the Oliver ranch, Vincenti Artellan, in the employ of the county, was struck on the head by a pulley [illegible] and instantly killed.

The damage in the Carmel valley and down the coast is confined almost wholly to high water and fallen trees.

Weather for January

In Carmel there were 24 days with more or less rain, 2 partly cloudy, and 5 that were clear.

Rainfall for the season, 15.25 inches, which is .75 of an inch more than last year during the same period.

Barometer registered 28.82 inches, the lowest recorded since the observer has been here, and said to be the lowest ever.

There were 5 hail storms.

Lowest temperature for the month, 29 degs., and for the season 26 degs.

Grace Wilson Married

On Monday afternoon Mr and Mrs. Philip Wilson were in receipt of a cablegram announcing the marriage of their daughter Grace to Frederick McConnell, in London.

Miss Wilson left here for Europe last August on a visit to relatives, and while in London has been engaged in work connected with the red cross.

Automobile News

BY K. UCHIMOTO

EDITORS, CARMEL PINE CONES,
Dear Mr. Sir:

While standing on corner of street corner a few days less than tomorrow, chewing rags with my friend Mr. Yomokaki, I are observe Hon. Doc Peake approach in Fords new rideabout with much closeness to Hon. druggist store of Doc Beck. This gent come to door making such sarcasm remarks as following. "As I was going to say, are you coming inside of store with complete wheelcar?" Whereupon Doc Peake speed down streets where he arrive with much slowness after striking ruts in near-street by name of 11.

Hoping you are the same,
with sincerely truly

Ostrich Tree No More

The thousands of travelers from all parts of the world who have viewed the interesting cypress tree, on the 17-mile drive, near Carmel, which because of its peculiar conformation was termed the "Ostrich Tree," will never again see the famous and much-photographed land-mark.

Last Thursday night's terrific wind laid low the famous tree, and with it went down twelve more of the ancient cypress trees.

According to Mr. Daniels, a landscape gardener and tree expert, it will be absolutely impossible by any method now in use to restore the trees.

Alice MacDougal to Act

In mention of James Barrie's "Rosalind," to be produced at Stanford University next Friday evening, the Stanford-Palo Alto News says:

"The title role will be in the hands of Miss Alice McDougal, a senior at the university. Miss McDougal is an actress of no mean talent or experience, her performances in the open-air theatre at Carmel having won her considerable recognition."

To Take Another Chance

A New York correspondent of the Pine Cone sends the information that Inez Haynes Gilmore, best known as the author of the "Phoebe and Ernest" stories, who spent some time in Carmel last summer, is shortly to marry Will Irwin, Stanford graduate and author. Both parties have been married before.

News items, personals, social notes. Bring or send them to the Pine Cone office.

PINE NEEDLES

We have with us Carl E. Fritchey, an artist rrom San Francisco. He will remain here for several months. A friend of Perry Newberry—nuf sed.

New telephone directories have been received here by those who have telephones. The number of subscribers has substantially increased.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Gray and wife of Pebble Beach, went to the city last Tuesday.

Mrs. R. G. Leidig who was quite ill last week, is about well again.

J. D. Weir, of the U. S. Public Health Service, with his wife, will shortly make their home in Carmel.

Mrs. E. R. Norwood and her guests have returned to the city.

Leo Narvaes, Leidig Bros.' efficient clerk, was taken ill last week, and brother Louis substituted.

Arrived: Jan. 20, boy, at the home of Ed. Romandia, Carmel; Jan. 26, girl, at the home of Frank Roach, down the coast. Dr. J. E. Beck attended in both cases.

A substantial fence has been put up around the Lynch-Wilson property in the south end of town.

Monte Verde is now open for the season. Since her return from the East, Mrs. Hamlin has spent much time getting her establishment ready for business.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Murphy have left for San Francisco, to be away indefinitely.

On Saturday morning C. O. Goold departed on a business trip to San Jose and San Francisco.

More hail wanted in the south end of town. Supply of ice cream running low.

Miss Mains, a former visitor here, is a guest of Mrs. Sydney Yard.

With George Schweninger in the box-office and Tom Lisk on the door, and a cracking good show, the largest crowd so far this year attended the moving pictures last Saturday night.

Since the storm a small army of pine cone and wood gatherers have been abroad in forest and on the beach. While obtaining fuel, these folks have incidentally performed a public service in removing obstructions from the roads and streets.

Sunday, Monday and yesterday were good days for abalone getters. In this connection it should be stated that owing to the rapacity of some people it is proposed to ask the Fish and Game Commission to set a limit.
